Townsmen Bereaved Death of Mother

The whole town was shocked on Sunday last by the news of the death of Miss Gladys Snyder, widow of the late Mr. Andrew Southworth Snyder of Glenora, Minn., and mother of Mr. Robt. A. Snyder, of town, which occurred late on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Snyder was out for a short walk with neighbors when she was seized with a heart attack. The doctor was immediately called and she was rushed to the hospital, but although everything possible was done for the patient, she passed away without regaining consciousness.

She was born at Shakopee, Minn., on Nov. 15th, 1860, and was nearly 78 years of age at the time of her death. Married at Sank Center, Minn., and after a lengthy residence at Glenora, Minn., where her husband passed away, she came to Wainwright some 15 years ago and has resided there ever since.

In addition to one sister, Mrs. C. L. Lord, of Park River, N.D., there are left to mourn three sons (Ross, of San Diego, Calif., Herbert L., of Vancouver, Wash., and Robert A., of Wainwright) and a number of grandchildren and to all of these The Star extends the full sympathies of a very large circle of friends and acquaintances. Two daughters predeceased their mother.

Suggestions to Improve Roads

Various suggestions for improvement of highway conditions have been brought to the attention of the Alberta Motor Association and are receiving the attention of officials.

One of these is to have illuminated signs placed at highway curves, similar to those in some other provinces. Extension of this system of marking intersecting highways also has been urged upon the association, which has already done considerable work of this kind.

A large number of signs in the northern and southern parts of the province have been erected by the A.M.A. and it is hoped of extending the system to a great extent this season. Main road signs are to be provided by the province, the locations being selected by the A.M.A.

I Met Him in Paris Theatre Feature

A romantic farce with dialogue, acting and photography all combined to make a thoroughly finished description of human relations are the high lights of "I Met Him in Paris," which is showing at the Elite this week-end.

In theme it's the old story of two men in love with a girl but the characterization is so subtly drawn and so humanly interesting that the picture is extraordinarily interesting. It definitely proves that light and gay comedy roles should be Claudette Colbert's specialty.

To get away from the boredom of work-a-day life and to escape the unwelcome attentions of a girl but unreluctantly to get away from the grand time of which she had long dreamed, there she finds fun with American Gene Andrews but the thrill of romance is blunted by George Potter, who takes her delight in butting in on all their meetings.

To get away from this pest, who threatens to expose Anders for the married man he is, Gene invites her to go to the Swiss Alps for a winter vacation, but George dogs along as a sort of unofficial chaperon. Expected dramatic complications are eliminated by the arrival of Gene's wife, Helen, which is a sad event for Kay.

Disillusioned, she decides to get away from all of them but when Potter drops in to comfort her she suddenly realizes that he is the "big moment" for which she has always been looking.

HARRY FOREMAN AGAIN ALTA. POOL DELEGATE

At the recent election of Alberta pool delegates held recently in Calgary, Mr. Harry Foreman of Chauvin was elected to represent sub-district G2, this being the territory in which Wainwright is included.

Genuine Rembrandt Stolen From Owner

With the Elite theatre now open every week night, the pal night shows are off to a good start on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week with "Women in Distress" as the main feature. It's a comedy drama you'll all enjoy.

The woman of title is played by May Robson with characteristic color and distress has to do with the theft of an authentic Rembrandt given to her by a girlhood sweetheart and treasured in the solitude of her small town home for 40 maiden years. Against the gentle, sentimental background thus established is projected a crook-detective-report melodrama involving frequent transmutations to the metropolis and, finally, attempted murder.

When newspapers report a rumor that a genuine Rembrandt, believed to have been burned, is in the possession of an up-state artist, rival editors send Fred Stevens and Irene Doucane, reporters, to investigate and Jerome Oliver, a steady art dealer, plans to steal the painting. While the rival reporters send their papers conflicting reports, Oliver obtains the painting and arranges for its sale but—

May Robson's performance is the outstanding portrayal, naturally, Irene Doucane and Dean Jagger are adequate in the romantic roles and Douglas Dumbrille is satisfactory as the principal criminal.

Of this total the coffers of the provincial treasury received $94,845, tax less totalled $87,459 and the amount tax on admission tickets reached $7,462.

Pool Elevator Getting New Scale

A gang of men under the direction of Mr. Haugen, foreman for Voss Bros. elevator contractors, arrived in town on Saturday morning and they are now busy at the pool elevator on the installation of new weight-scale and making necessary alterations and repairs in order to be ready for this year's crop buying.

Mr. Jack Davidson, of Dodds, spent a few days in town the past week.

Plan Vacations In Fall Months

Winnipeg, Man.—Post-holiday travel bargains announced by the Canadian National Railways promise to make September a red-letter month for travel-minded folk who have stayed at home all summer.

Canadian National Railways have arranged for low fares from the prairies to the Pacific Coast and from the Pacific Coast to the western prairies.

Beginning Saturday, September 3, and on sale until September 11, with a return limit of 30 days, special fares to the west coast will be available from all stations from Port Arthur, Ont., westward including the Province of Alberta. Similar fares from the west coast to the prairies, with the same return limit, will be sold between September 6 and 13, inclusive.

Stopovers will be permitted at Calgary, Edmonton and west of that point on westbound tickets sold in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario, and eastbound tickets they will be allowed at Calgary and Edmonton only. Tickets will be valid going and returning via the same line and route in each direction.

Optional routes and side-trips will not apply.

Fares for these travel periods are quoted for coaches only at two and a quarter cents per mile, using one-way mileage for the round trip; for coach-tourist accommodation at two and three-quarters cents per mile on the same basis and for first-class at three and one quarter cents per mile.

First Across Old Bridge Veteran First Over New

Wainwright, N.B.—When the new railway bridge across the Saint John river between Fredericton and South Devon was officially opened, Herbert Belyea rode in the engine cab of the first train across. Now 74 years of age, Belyea was put into the locomotive over the old bridge in 1888. He served the Canadian National Railways 44 years. The new bridge replaces the structure of half a century ago, which was carried away by flood and ice in 1936.

Mrs. J. J. Ruste Passes Away City Hospital

Following an operation in an Edmonton hospital last week for internal trouble, Romaine, beloved wife of Mr. John J. Ruste, passed away at the age of 58 years.

The late Mrs. Ruste was born at Dover, Gubrandalen, Norway, on Jan. 18, 1882, coming to Canada in 1916. She was married in Edmonton on August 26th of that year and came immediately to Wainwright, living here since that time.

For the past two years she has been suffering from illness and was taken to the city last week for an operation. Unfortunately she could not survive the shock and passed away as stated.

Dixon, A. Alexander, S. Merrick, S. Kelly and J. S. Ruste.

Survivors of the deceased are her husband, as well as two sons, Henry and Melvin, and one daughter, Ruth, all of Wainwright. Three sisters and three brothers still resident in Norway, as well as one brother, Matthias H. Bjornsgaard, of Wainwright, are also bereaved.

Reduce License Fee for Trucks

Reduction of motor truck licenses will become effective in this province on September 1, instead of October 1, according to word which the Alberta Motor Association has received from the provincial government.

Licenses taken out after Sept. 1 will be 40 per cent. less than the annual charge, and will be good until March 31, which is the end of the fiscal year.

Purpose of advancing the reduction date is to facilitate the movement of the grain crop, according to provincial officials. "Through being enabled to take advantage of the fee reduction some truck owners will be able to obtain freight business that might ordinarily be lost to them."

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. J. J. Ruste wish to express to all the kind neighbors, friends and sympathizers their deep thanks for the many kindnesses extended to them in their bereavement, and also for the beautiful floral tributes of love and respect.

Mistakes Avoided in Oil Development

Only by orderly development of the Turner Valley oil fields would it have been possible to save to prairie consumers the 5½ million dollars which will be saved this year.

There is a natural tendency to minimize the marketing problems which meet Alberta producers. Marketing problems it is often said, solve themselves.

Experience has shown the error of those who hold this comforting view. They are unaware, perhaps, of the confusion which once reigned in the oil fields of East Texas. In the process of developing its market the price of crude oil in that field went down as low as 10 cents a barrel. When production was put into effect, the market had to be invoked to enforce it.

Once the benefits of regulation were realized, the views changed. It has been fortunate for Alberta and the west that the industry here has avoided the disastrous experience which caused such trouble in Texas.

Mr. Alex Gaukin drove to Morinville last Friday to bring home his family.

LIGHTNING CAUSES FIRE BARN LOSS

During the very heavy electrical storm on Wednesday last the elements sure played havoc with the district to the north and east of town, and during its height a bolt of lightning struck the big barn on the farm of Mr. H. U. Taylor, some 15 miles north west, with the result that the structure was burned to the ground. Fortunately only other losses were sustained in the fire, although no insurance was carried.

Car Accidents Cause 55 Deaths

While deaths from motor vehicles accidents increased in Canada in 1937, there was a falling off in Alberta, according to figures issued recently by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

As a matter of fact fewer persons were killed in auto accidents in Alberta last year in proportion to population than in any other part of Canada, except Saskatchewan.

Last year there were 55 deaths from motor accidents in Alberta, as against 72 the previous year. The death rate was 7.1 for each 100,000 of population compared with 16.5 in British Columbia, 9.2 in Manitoba and 20.8 in Ontario.

Saskatchewan, however, led all the provinces, reporting only five deaths per 100,000 of population.

Improvement in the fatal accident situation in this province is shown by the fact that the death rate in 1936 was 9.3, compared with 7.1 last year. In fact Alberta rate has been declining steadily since 1928, when it reached a high point of 11.4.

Official figures show that deaths from motor accidents in Canada reached the total of 1,626 last year, as against 1,318 in 1936 and 1,224 in 1935.

TEACHER CLAIMS ALTA. EDUCATION LEADS

By placing the province in the van of teaching progress, Alberta's educational reformers have a revolutionary change credited to them, the improvement being made by doing away with out-of-date methods and substituting a system of practical vocational guidance.

That is the firm belief of George K. Haverstock, for the past four weeks director of special studies of 1,400 teachers at the summer school at the University of Alberta. Formerly principal of the Camrose Normal school, Mr. Haverstock will be on the staff of the Edmonton Normal school during the coming term.

Policeman Turns Messenger Boy

Saint John, N.B.—"Carrying the message to you" had nothing on Canadian National Telegraph messenger Gordon J. Walsh, who, when being conveyed to hospital in a police car following his collision with another bicycle, on reviving, mumbled, "Don't take me to the hospital until I deliver my message to the Ford Motor Company." Young Walsh was knocked unconscious when he went over the handle-bars of his bicycle following the collision. Notwithstanding the protest, Sergeant-Detective Kilpatrick, who was driving the police car, decided Sergeant was best and continued on to the hospital with the injured messenger. Then the Sergeant-Detective turned messenger himself and delivered the telegram.

Reduced Fares For Long Weekend

Another long week end with holiday possibilities brings special reduced fares on the Canadian National Railways. For Labor Day, September 5, the railway offers return transportation good leaving Friday, September 2, and until 2 p.m., September 6, with return limit Tuesday, September 6. Where there is no train service on September 2, tickets will be sold on September 1.

Fares good in coaches are set at one-way coach class rate and one-quarter for the round trip. Tickets will also be good for tourist sleeping cars on payment for that accommodation. One and a quarter first fares covers the bargain fares good in sleeping and parlor cars on payment also for the special accommodation. The minimum fare in each case is twenty-five cents.

Conditions Now Favor Harvesting

With generally favorable conditions continuing as harvesting proceeds, fulfillment of earlier hopes for good crops of the main staples in every province of the Dominion seems assured. In the Prairie Provinces harvesting is well under way in Saskatchewan and Southern Alberta, while in Manitoba, where wheat cutting is nearing completion, harvesting returns indicate that yields generally will be fair to good. Rust damage to non-resistant wheat has become more serious in Eastern Saskatchewan, causing a further decline in prospective yields.

Recent rains were beneficial to late grains in Alberta as well as to pastures and root crops that have delayed wheat cutting, which should be general this week. Average "to good" grade of good grade are anticipated in all districts except in the northwest and southeast, where the crops are light. Recent hail damage in scattered areas was not serious. Pastures in good condition.

Saskatchewan—Cutting is well advanced in the eastern part of the province and good progress is being made elsewhere. Rust is prevalent in a wide area and its serious development in eastern districts on non-resistant wheat will further decrease prospective yields and grades. Grasshoppers are numerous and crops in some districts are being cut green to prevent further damage. Pastures and late crops benefited from recent rains.

Manitoba—Although harvesting has been delayed by rains, wheat cutting is nearing completion, except in the northern districts and threshing is becoming general. While rust has caused some damage, yields generally will be fair to good. Early threshing has caused some damage to crops in some districts. Pastures are in fair condition.

While rust has caused some damage, yields generally will be fair to good. Early threshing has caused some damage to crops in some districts. Pastures are in fair condition.

Results have not yet been received from Margaret Boeck, Grade XII, Katherine Kwamien, Grade IX, and Eleanor Cook, Commercial. Results of examinations have been very satisfactory in all grades, 92.2% being successful. This is the highest standing yet attained by the Blessed Sacrament School.

Princess Pats' Sister Will Visit

Jenny Morris, most beloved of London wartime women, is to be an eight-week guest in Canada of the Princess Pats.

The big sister of the Pats will cross the Dominion in a coast-to-coast renewal of the friendships she made during the trying time of war and which she has miraculously kept alive through the years.

Douglas Oliver in the Toronto Globe says of her, "Sister of your Nightingale! Empty your glasses to Margie de Croy! Glory the 'Angels of Mons' if you will. But there was only one Jenny Morris, and her touch, her influence, her even temper, her quiet voice, her kind eyes, her unfailing understanding for and tolerance of human frailties are so woven into the battlement history of the Princess Pats that Canada need no longer wonder why, today, the wires are humming and the mails are inordinately heavy."

New Scales and Additions, G'shields

The Northern elevator at Green Shields is in the hands of C. P. Wilson Co., of Edmonton, and for the past couple of weeks a gang of men have been busy there making extensive repairs.

Included in the contract, too, is the erection of a new scale-house, new air-dump scale, new driveway and other necessary alterations and replacements which will bring this house right up-to-date.

All the gay colors and exotic designs of clintz are incorporated in a new American fabric patterned after the Chinese inspirations. It is washable, color-fast and pre-shrunk making it ideal for bright summer dresses, sun-suits, bathing costumes, and garden and beach hats.

The phrases "golden" and "all very tones" have long been stock descriptions used by poets and critics to describe beauty in music. Now, it appears, science and art have co-operated to add a new term to the musical writer's dictionary—"platinum tones." Such, at any rate, is one of the possible results of the introduction by Georges Barrere, world-famous flutist, of a solid platinum flute. Made at a cost of $3,000, this instrument is said by musicians and scientists who have heard it to possess tonal qualities superior to those of any other flute ever made.

Experiments at one of the leading universities have shown that potato juice is as rich in vitamins as tomato juice. Peppers, horseradish, parsnips, turnip greens are more powerful sources of vitamin C than orange juice; and cabbage, cress, peas and turnips have about the same amount of the vitamin as orange juice. New methods of estimating the strength of the vitamin content in fruits and vegetables have been discovered. It used to take thirty days with a guinea pig, but now less than an hour is needed.

Household Hint: A small piece of butter added to the water in which vegetables are to be cooked will prevent them from boiling over.

The Utility of a Wheat Board

(By L. D. Nesbitt)

It is gratifying to note the degree of solidarity with which the majority of the people of Western Canada have gotten behind the Wheat Board this year and made representations to the government in support of a reasonable initial payment. It is many years since the west showed such an united front.

There is a fair crop in Western Canada today is due to the determined leadership of the Wheat Board of Western Canada. These organizations sent delegations after delegation to Ottawa during the past eight years to press the need of a Wheat Board before the federal government. They also presented this case for a Wheat Board before various governmental inquiries and commissions. In all these activities they had the support of the United Farmers of Alberta, the United Farmers of Canada, the United Farmers of Western Canada, the United Farmers of Manitoba. A few other organizations such as the Association of Rural Municipalities gave appreciative support.

The need for a Wheat Board during the depression years was obvious. In most countries of the world wheat had been taken out of the economic field and became a political question. Canada was slow to realize what had occurred largely due to the advice of economists of the orthodox school and the grain trade of this country. Their contention was that the adverse conditions being experienced by wheat producers were transitory and would shortly disappear.

Of course, the trouble started when the world raised a record wheat crop in 1928 and stock markets collapsed in 1929 when the depression was ushered in. Wheat mark so low in price that in some instances the railways carrying the grain got more for their services than did the producers. The world's surplus piled up until it reached the total of over 1,100 million bushels.

Some people soothingly said that low prices would increase consumption and the surplus would be taken care of in that way. But consumption did not increase because of low prices. In fact it has remained remarkably even during the past ten years.

The surplus was eventually cleaned up—but by what process? Sixty-four million in North America, the worst this continent has experienced in 50 years. The United States became a wheat importer for the first time in 100 years. The Canadian prairies were scorched year after year by excessive, unprecedented drought.

In addition, another large wheat exporting nation, Argentina, experienced two major crop disasters with only one year intervening. In 1935 Argentina had one of the worst droughts in her history and lost 70 million bushels of wheat.

So that it took an entire of calamities following each other in quick succession in three of the great wheat exporting countries of the world to get rid of the wheat surplus which was really started by the huge 1928 crop, and to restore the level to a decent figure. Crop disasters of such extent will hardly occur in such quick succession among so many countries for a long time to come.

It is just a year since the world wheat surplus was cut down to a reasonable figure and now the 1938 production can be fairly well estimated. The best authorities are convinced that the world's production this year will touch an all-time peak, exceeding the record-breaking crop of 1928, which caused all the wheat surplus troubles, by at least 300 million bushels. So, it looks like the "wheat problem" is back again on the world's doorstep once again. It is these circumstances that make the Wheat Board a necessity in Canada today. If the Wheat Board had not struggled and fought until they got a Wheat Board in 1935 western wheat producers would have nowhere to turn today and the outlook for them would be bleak indeed.

There is a fair crop in Western Canada this year. A large number of farmers, who have not had anything like a crop for six or seven years, will have some wheat this fall. The fairly high prices of the past two years meant nothing to them for they got not benefit from them. This year, when they have something to sell, prices have hit the kids. This is a condition that people should not overlook.

Western wheat producers need a Wheat Board. The outstanding authorities on wheat matters in the world are fairly well agreed that the wheat industry as a whole is geared to too high a productive basis. European importing nations have demanded that they are not interested in cheap wheat. Last year there was some relaxation of restrictions on imported wheat by Europe, but the restoration of handicaps in many importing countries is already under way once again. World trade was only 500 million bushels last year and is not likely to be much larger during the 1938-39 crop year which started last Monday.

Prospective world supplies of wheat which include a carryover, are estimated by the United States department of agriculture at 4,850 million bushels, or about 475 million bushels above those of a year ago.

If Argentina and Australia did not raise a single bushel of wheat this year the world would still have a larger supply than last year by 75 million bushels.

Only unprecedented and unexpected wheat buying by Europe can improve the world situation appreciably during the next twelve months. In the meantime, the price prospect for wheat producers in the large wheat exporting countries is anything but cheerful.

"RADIO CONFUSION" DE CANADA

(By "Yardmaster" in Basano, Alta., Recorder)

Last Sunday our chief turned on his radio and got three stations on the same wavelength; one was a minister in Moose Jaw, preaching a sermon; one was Blinnak broadcasting a talk and the third from Regina on the condition of the roads. This is what he told me he heard:

Our text today tells us that baby children should devour one mile south of Grand Coulee and listen to the words of the prophet, saying use great care in the selection of your eggs and you will run into a few drafts between there and Pense.

We find in Genesis that the roads are muddy just west of the hen house and care must be taken to clean them daily and you must see that there is clean straw in the nest if you expect to save your soul. After you leave Pense go west one mile and then the three Wise Men went to Jerusalem where I would advise you to purchase at least 500 eggs on account of a bad detour where the baby chicks were troubled with the pip and bond issue being talked on these roads. Keep the feet clean and dry, live a life of righteousness and turn south at the peach-house. The roads are reported to be very slippery around Jerusalem where Baalam went through Jerusalem on his ass. Much care must be used in commanding the sun to stand still as there is a washout in the line just north of Belle Plaine and the road to salvation is undergoing repairs, making it necessary to keep the temperature in the brooder at least 76 degrees.

After leaving Belle Plaine under you do these things the wrath of God will cause all the pin feathers to drop out and detour one mile south of the cemetery. Many are called but few have any luck unless the gravel road on the Moose Jaw Hill is well mixed with sand. Out of 300 eggs one should get good roads to Morthland and He commended Noah to build the ark one mile west of Caron. It rained 40 days and 40 nights and caused a five mile detour just west of the brooder house but care must be taken or the chicks will lose their combs, and remember, friends, where the Lord said unto Moses you must watch carefully the Children of Israel have a tendency to get lousy on their way to the promised land and whitewash should be used on No. 1 highway where the gravel will reach an average weight of six or seven pounds before it is too late and the trumpet of Gabriel sounds, etc., etc.

Some species of mosquitoes attack birds only; many species of the insects do not suck blood at all.

WHERE IS THE DIFFERENCE? (By Hope Harding)

We are often warned never to look back, always ahead. I wonder why? Sometimes it's heaps of fun to dig into the past.

For instance, I did a little mental digging at radio, when on a rare occasion reception was good. As I listened, I was reminded of a broadcast with the first line I ever heard radio.

"That first broadcast, how wonderful it seemed then, but looking back it is almost humorous and get—there is a similarity."

It was in a small town and one very enterprising youth had built a penitentiary receiving set which was finally in working order. Practically all the inhabitants of the town gathered together to hear the newest and best invention yet. Many of us donned best hats and tuckers to add to the general air of celebration.

Vividly I recall how we sat waiting, awed, and with bated breath, for what?

Mostly shrill whistling sounds and scarcely a dozen indistinct words, interspersed with rather long periods of deathly silence. With one extra loud whistle it was all over and we returned to our homes thrilled with the wonder of it all.

It was astounding, we had heard a man speak from Edmonton, no wires, nothing but waves on the ether. Gigantic strides have been taken in the field of radio since then, not so very long ago, either, but do we benefit? We all know of dozens of simply wonderful programmes that may be heard today, just by merely twisting a dial or pushing a button. But—can they be heard? That is the question.

"Rarely," is the correct answer, I believe. One tunes in, a play is about to commence. Good. We settle back in pleasurable anticipation but someone chooses that very time to do a little cleaning with a vacuum cleaner. With a sigh we shut it off. Later we venture again, switch it on and oh! there's the mighty organ at Salt Lake City pealing majestically forth, filling our very souls with rapture—but no, it is not to be. Mr. So-and-so has simply got to experiment with his new electric razor just at that time.

With a bigger sigh we snap it off again. Once more we try, after a period of silence broken only by the crackle of newspapers being turned, and the irritating click of knitting needles.

Splendid! Just in time for the late news—or are we. No! of course somebody has to intrude on the air lanes with an electrical gadget of one kind or another. It is probably someone making cocktails in the electric egg-beater.

Even Charlie McCarthy is blotted out by someone anxious to have the wash on the line bright and early on Monday morning.

And so it goes, and there we are, right back where we started years ago. No, not quite. Those early, playing whistle-like tones filled and thrilled us with expectation. Those newer, ear-splitting, rasping roars thrust us not, merely fill us with frustration and exasperation. Is there really much difference?

THIS VARYING WORLD

Very truly it takes all kinds of people to make a world! And although, of course, this phrase is not exactly original, it is as true as it is trite.

We have the talkative and the silent, the hot-tempered and the even-tempered, the quiet disposition and the active and the shy; the selfish and the unselfish; those who hoard money as well as those who would scatter it.

There must be this multiplicity of types; not only to give variety to life but to enable the wheels of our days to go round at all. Just as competition is the life of trade, so all these different kinds of folks, rubbing one against the other, each making his or her contribution to the web of modern living, give it both strength and variety.

Usually we are all much too hasty in our judgment of others. We are all somewhat guilty of it. Wondering (with a suggestive lift of the eyes) how our neighbors can afford this or that—hoping they are paying their way!

If they like to see the uplifted and the proud "brought down a peg or two"; especially if they are far down the list themselves! This is perhaps natural and human for we all like to be on the winning side or on the upgrade whenever possible.

But we need never be spiteful or careless or callous. A lowly condition has, at least, one recommendation, stressed by the lines of the poet—"He that is low need fear no fall." So when we feel moved to remark (perhaps rashly): "It takes all sorts of people to make a world," might it not be a good opportunity to ask ourselves what particular contribution we are making to the peace and prosperity of the world we live in, and what our lodge and our lodge connections actually mean to us in this regard in this varying world!

TENDING GARDENS

IN AUTUMN TIME

Gardens everywhere are now at the most alarming stage and provide opportunity for the enthusiastic amateur to observe what new varieties, combinations, contrasts and cultural methods may best serve to enhance the loveliness of their own creative efforts, says G. R. Snyder, soils chemist.

Now conceptions can be put into practice at once, for the late summer and early fall is an excellent time for the establishment or improvement of lawns and perennial borders, and the settling-out of the ever-popular pansy, forget-me-not and English daisy.

For fall planting, however, great care is required in the preparation of the soil. Early, vigorous growth is essential if the plants are to become well established before cold weather sets in. Plant food of a character that will promote both vegetative and strong root growth is required in abundance and in readily available form. To build up this food supply a complete garden fertilizer of the type of a 4-10-8 may be applied previous to planting, at the rate of two lbs. per 100 square feet, and thoroughly mixed with the soil to a depth of two to three inches. Later in the season, say in October, a supplement application of a high phosphate fertilizer of the type 10-16-6 may be used to further stimulate the root development primarily and to fortify the plants against the rigors of winter.

Lawn improvement begins with the elimination of weeds. Dandelions can be discouraged by treating the individual plants with a shot of chemical weed killer. For the control of grass a very dilute solution of sodium arsenite used as a spray has interesting possibilities; properly applied, it cleans out the plants without permanent injury to the grass. Weeds flourish when the turf is thin and can best be controlled by maintaining a thick grass sward through the practice of early fall feeding of the entire lawn.

When making plans for fall planting, the preparation of mulching material for the lawn should not be overlooked. Well rotted manure and good loam soil built up in layers of a few inches in thickness and well watered should be ready for use before the cold weather sets in.

Gardens that provide interest, beauty and pleasure every day are not the product of chance, but rather the result of an accumulation of ideas developed by intelligent co-operation with nature and science.

PRE-COOLING AND REFRIGERATION OF FRUIT

The development of the use of refrigeration for fruit preservation has been very rapid during the past decade due to the increased demand of the consumer for a product of high quality. In addition there has been a steady increase in fruit production throughout the world and this has led to an all-around demand and the need for a uniform policy, the by which growers and shippers can meet the price levels, states C. A.
Eaves, Graduate Assistant in Fruit
Storage, Experimental Station, Kentville, N.S. Large quantities of apples and pears are shipped to the markets of the United Kingdom each year from Canada and refrigeration plays its part not only in the holding of these fruits, but also in their transportation.

A distinction must be made at the outset between the two methods of cold storage. The first designated as

"pre-cooling" and the second as "long holding".

Pre-cooling refers to the rapid cooling of fruits down to a temperature of approximately 40 degrees F. within 24 hours after harvest and is particularly applicable to pears, plums and the early dessert varieties of apples. Experiments at the Experimental Station, Kentville, have shown that packed barreled apples may be cooled from 70 degrees F. to 40 degrees F. in 24 hours at a room temperature of 20 degrees F. with moving air. Such a process prevents the rapid ripening of freshly picked fruit by removal of what is known as the "vital heat". It may be safely stated in this connection that even though pre-cooled fruit may be subsequently exposed to relatively high temperatures during transportation, its condition on arrival is far better than that of fruits not subjected to such treatment.

The term "long holding" necessarily speaks for itself, but this method of cold storage is full of pitfalls and has thus been the source of much investigation by the Experimental Station.
Three experimental cold storage plants are now in operation, at Ottawa, Kentville, N.S., and Summerland, B.C. The main object of the experiments being undertaken is to provide the public with better quality fruit at lower cost. Quality of fruit in storage is dependent upon a great many factors and not the least important of these are those concerned with the growing fruit upon the tree, such as soil and seasonal conditions and the stage of maturity at harvest time.

It has been found that storage quality is much affected by the kind and amount of fertilizer applied to the tree. Excess nitrogen is detrimental in this respect, whereas a moderate application of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, i.e., a balanced fertilizer, has always given favorable results.

Seasons in which there is an excess of rain and little sunshine are not conducive to good keeping in storage, and likewise very dry periods followed by heavy rainfall.

The tendency to harvest immature apples is very often reflected in storage. The immature fruit is of inferior quality known as core flush. This disorder is very marked in the immature McIntosh apple. Similarly Warner apples which are not allowed to colour on the tree are very susceptible to scald in storage.

Core flush development is also influenced by fertilizer treatment and by storage temperature. Strangely enough, however, certain storage temperatures may be conducive to core flush in one variety but not in another. For example, the Fameuse apple is susceptible to this disease at 40 degrees F. and resistant at 32 degrees F. whereas the reverse is true of McIntosh. Low temperatures such as 22 degrees are desirable from the point of view of control of fungal decay. The problem therefore with apples is to avoid low temperature types of breakdown, and at the same time prevent rotting of the fruit.

There are several types of storage disorders and the control of these is rendered extremely complex when it is considered that each variety reacts specifically in storage to the major influences of temperature and stage of maturity at harvest.

DESTRUCTIVENESS OF MENTAL EMOTIONS

In these days, when everybody seems to have "colon trouble," a short talk on the subject appears to me very timely. I want you, not only to read, but to heed this, for it may concern you in particular.

Any form of profound emotion, as anger, fright, grief, and such like, exert a most decided effect on the colon, or large intestine. I have noticed that heavy brain workers are almost always troubled with that bane of healthy bodies—constipation. Any excess of effort on the part of the brain subtracts from the necessary nerve forces of the involuntary system, and to the detriment in health of the individual concerned. And I am sure that those placid natures among men and women—who take life temperately—who are not impulsive, irritable or quarrelsome, invariably have the best-working elementary canals. I could mention many cases in proof.

I know of one man who cured his constipation—a severe form—by studiously avoiding his habit of fault-finding, and his own of the most perfect cure. I have witnessed. For years he had been a persistent "crouch." He could not argue on any question without insulting his opponent by his own anger. He said he "became so mean his family could hardly live with him." His physician told him the clogged bowel was the cause of his nerve trouble. A capable neurologist told him—and proved it—that his habit of growling produced the constipation! He simply was being mean and got well.

Here is something worth thinking about, worth trying, since the trial involves no expense in time or money. If you are overworking the mental energy in any direction, stop it, and work temperately; and as for foolish mental outbreaks, stop them anyway. We know that mental emotion affects the bowel profoundly. Now see if you can go about it intelligently and cure yourself.

as 22 degrees are desirable from the point of view of control of fungal decay. The problem therefore with apples is to avoid low temperature types of breakdown, and at the same time prevent rotting of the fruit.

There are several types of storage disorders and the control of these is rendered extremely complex when it is considered that each variety reacts specifically in storage to the major influences of temperature and stage of maturity at harvest.

Many of these cases are most serious and in all cases should be under the supervision of a doctor. Sunburn heat prostration and heat stroke are some of the disadvantages of sunshine. These may be avoided. After all, they do not counter-balance the good that, in a variety of directions, comes from the rays of the sun.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

SOME DISADVANTAGES OF SUNSHINE

A sunburn may be prevented by the previous application to the skin of a solution, of Epison ointment or by similar use of a tannic acid solution, two tea-spoonsful to a glassful of warm water. Even strong tea may be used in an emergency.

Excessive or hard work in the hot sun may cause prostration. In severe cases the victim may have cramps in his legs. The profuse sweating involves not only a loss of water from the system, but it occasions a loss of salt that seems to upset the chemistry of the body. Under such circumstances very dilute salt water is quite palatable and, oddly enough quenches thirst better than plain water.

Heat stroke, popularly called sunstroke, is due to exposure to heat under conditions of high humidity which prevent the normal heat loss from the body. The body's normal heat-regulating mechanism has failed. This condition may begin with headache, dizziness, thirst or nausea; often there is a sudden loss of consciousness with a rapid rise of body temperature as high as 107 or 110 degrees F. Heat stroke should be avoided if at all possible because the victim of heat stroke is thereby rendered sensitive to future heat exposure even as low as 80 degrees F.

High external temperatures complicated by stagnant or moist air which fails to assist the cooling of the body surface by evaporation, are causative of heat stroke. Under such conditions bodily exertion must be limited. The wearing of light, well-ventilated headgear gives a degree of protection.

If actual heat stroke has occurred or appears about to occur, the person should at once be removed to the coolest available spot. The bare body should be wrapped in a sheet wet in cold water and cooling by evaporation should be aided by fanning so as to gain a moving current of air. The temperature should be taken frequently and artificial aids to heat loss discontinued when the temperature has fallen to 102 degrees F. Plenty of fluids should be given by mouth. Many of these cases are most serious and in all cases should be under the supervision of a doctor.

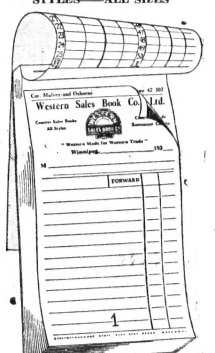

Sunburn heat prostration and heat stroke are some of the disadvantages of sunshine. These may be avoided. After all, they do not counter-balance the good that, in a variety of directions, comes from the rays of the sun.

Replace the cover, draw off the water, and replenish the ice and salt. Cover, and allow to harden for at least an hour before serving.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

A successful man is one who has tried, not cried; who has worked, not chided; who has shouldered responsibility, not evaded it; who has got under the burden, not merely stood to one side looking at one—giving advice and philosophizing on the situation.

The result of a man's work is not the measure of success. To go down with the ship in storm and tempest is better than to float lazily with the current in a canoe. To have worked faithfully is to have succeeded—we leave the results to time. Life is too short to gather the whole harvest.

UNITED WE STAND!
Lord Rothermere, spitting with a former editor of the Times in London, has come out with the declaration that some of the Dominions would declare a neutrality if Britain went to war over the Central European issue, says the Drumheller Mail.

We can't see upon what he bases his conclusion, for in the last conflict Canada was one of the first to come to the aid of the Mother Country, and as much as we dislike and fear war and want to keep out of it, we still think that Canada would again be one of the first to send her fighting contingents. Rothermere, with his petty quibbles, must have divided we fall byword and password that has given Great Britain her strength and place among the nations.

MAINTAIN SANITARY CONDITIONS IN THE POULTRY FLOCK

Hygiene and sanitation are factors as important to the poultry flock as good stock, clean water, proper food and range, states W. H. Scott, Head Poultryman, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont. Failure to maintain clean and sanitary surroundings is frequently the weak spot in poultry management. Cleanliness is essential, as high mortality and reduced egg production follow disease and impaired vitality. To ensure healthy surroundings remove droppings daily and scatter an absorbent such as sand plaster over the dropping boards. Renew litter before it becomes too dirty, and supply clean water in clean vessels. Diseases may spread rapidly through the medium of dirty water or containers.

At least once a year, with a broom and brush, scrape and sweep clean the floors and walls of the poultry house, removing dirt and cobwebs, and if running water is available use the hose at high pressure. Paint the roosts and supports with a good coat of disinfectant, full strength, and spray frequently with a solution of the same product according to the instructions of the manufacturer. The range also demands a share of precaution. Gravel or sandy loam provide the best sanitary conditions and is easily worked with a one-hoe plough. All range and yards should be ploughed and cropped yearly and seeded with a quick-growing crop. Sudan grass is palatable and greatly resists. To ensure a good supply, it is well to cut Sudan grass at about six inches high before allowing the birds access to the yards or range. Ideal sanitary conditions are supplied with a two or three-year range rotation; a good crop intervening in the range rotation provides additional protection against parasites that flourish in contaminated soil.

EVERY SEASON IS THE BEST DESPITE TIME'S CHANGES

It has been claimed that even as he is born, a man begins to die. By the time a man has reached thirty, some of his first vigor is, as a rule, already gone. Before midlife life the final decay begins to set its mark upon humans. Or is it simply a change to something less pliable and less resistant? At any rate, the change is there.

As it is with man, so it is with the year. The verdure of spring holds within itself the beginning of its final decay. Summer comes, and by the end of July the delicate tints and the colors of spring are but a memory. The woods are beautiful, but it is a mature beauty. Many go flower-gathering in spring; few in July. The time of blossoming has lost its first youth, and the shadow of age is already upon it.

There is a certain sadness in this, as there always is in the march of time. There is a certain sadness in people growing older; in the year growing older. In the final disappearance of youth and people. Yet the man who allows these inevitable changes to affect his happiness must be blind to the fact that there is not an age and not a season but has its own particular advantages and enjoyments. The person who has reached the summertime of life has not only the glories of summertime to enjoy, but the memories of spring. He is twice blessed. And the person who has reached the autumn of life has memories of spring and summer as well as the enjoyment of the fall and its fruitage. Even the winter of life is beautiful, and its memories multifold.

World Gathering of Odd Fellows
SEPT. 18-23
The Odd Fellows 114th annual convention with delegates present from every state in the United States and the provinces of Canada, as well as other parts of the world, will be held in Oklahoma City, September 18 to 23. Sessions will be held in the Municipal Auditorium.

The delegates who will attend this session will legislate for 1,450,013 men and women, of whom 648,000 are members of the ladies' lodges. These members attend 25,500 "home" lodges which meet weekly, bi-weekly or monthly. There are 252 junior boys' lodges and 367 Theta Rho Clubs for junior girls. Odd Fellow lodges are located in nearly every city and village in the United States and Canada and there are lodges in Australia, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Latin America, Norway, Poland, Sweden, Switzerland, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands.

The Order of Odd Fellows is one of the largest in membership of any fraternal order, and thousands of members will attend the convention at Oklahoma City. The Order is a representative body. Although the membership is principally from the people in the ordinary walks of life, it has many members who are outstanding in political, professional and business affairs. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Hon. R. B. Bennett, a former premier, President Roosevelt, Vice President John N. Garner are all Odd Fellows, as are the governors of many states and provinces. Governor E. W. Marland, of Oklahoma, another member, will welcome the convention in behalf of the citizens of Oklahoma.

The Odd Fellows pay out a vast amount of money every year for relief of needy members. Since the establishment of the Order it has expended $304,148,623.00 for this purpose. Last year, relief expenditures exceeded four million dollars. The subordinate lodges of the Order have invested funds of more than $76,000,000.00.

The session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge will be presided over by Grand Sir Thomas G. Andrews, a prominent

IF ALL the merchants and business men on Main Street would clear the weeds from the front of their premises, as has been done by a few, and the Town Council would do the same, the town would be a much better place in the minds of the strangers within our gates! Crop or no crop, this infestation still continues.

There have been 25% more car accidents this year than last year and they will continue to increase as more cars are used. No prudent man will own a car that is not fully insured. See Joe Welch.

We are happy to learn that Bill Stuart, who is still at Banff, is making great strides in his improved health. Mrs. Stuart visited him last week.

Having enjoyed during sunshine and storm a couple of months at their cottage at the lake, the George Clark family moved back to their town home last week end—and as the lady says, "plowed through the mud to get back once again!"

A vastly exciting melodrama of the day's most amazing spectacle, fascinating, riveting stuff, one of the really big films—"Hurricane", at Theatre next week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Steel celebrated the 30th anniversary of their wedding on Sunday last, and on Monday the Editor and his good lady "licked off the calendar" for one more year, too.

The two sisters of the convent who were visiting in the East, as well as the four who were attending summer school in Edmonton during the summer holidays have all returned to resume their fall duties.

"Trentham's Lien Note Books at The Star office."

"Like a little candle..." Such was the attraction at the Massey Harris warehouse last Saturday evening. They now have the electric light installation completed!

The many friends of the Sisters here will be glad to know that the two who were operating on during the summer months are making a splendid recovery.

"Two shows at Elite theatre start again next week and Bill Brunner has quite a number of new reviews booked now for this fall showing."

The completion of his summer holiday period saw Harry Clifton back at the vendor's store last week end. Mrs. Clifton also returned from the west with him.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Hedley Abbott on his securing the appointment in Edmonton as an instructor under the physical training scheme. He will be the tutor for this district after his training is complete. Thirty-six have been appointed for the whole province.

Master Raymond Currie, of Round Hill, is here to spend a few days with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Adams.

Work is being rushed on the new school building, the cement basement being now completed.

The Wainwright separate school has now been re-decorated in view of the opening of school on Sept. 6th. The ordinary music classes will commence on that date, too, although the special classes for beginners will not open until Sept. 14th.

Thieves got away with three tons of hatter twine from the U.G.G. mill in Edmonton last week. Must be a heavy crop somewhere!

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Halliwell, accompanied by their son, Mr. W. A. Halliwell, and Mrs. W. R. Phillips, all of Lloydminster, had an unpleasant experience at the week-end when they literally plowed their way here through the mud to pay a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johns.

From what we can learn, the epidemic horse disease which has troubled our farmers for the past month is dying out somewhat now, although it caused the loss of quite a few valuable animals before it was checked by vaccine administration.

Mr. Jim Lewis left last week end to join his comrades in the U.S. air forces at Fort Leavenworth, after a pleasant holiday spent with his parents here.

Sneak thieves are apparently busy around town; last week end they visited the home of Mr. A. Gaskill on Fifth Avenue east, getting away with two car robes and a wrist watch without disturbing the occupants who were all asleep.

It has been estimated that there are 2,000 species of catfish.

THE "CATERPILLAR" DIESEL

IS Bargain HORSEPOWER!

Yes sir—buying fuel for the "Caterpillar" Diesel Tractor is as pleasant as getting in on rare 1-cent sale bargains—like getting two full-sized horsepower for the old price of one. And that holds true on either belt and power take-off work or heavy-duty drawbar pulling.

The above job, for example, is taking only slightly more than 1 gallon of low-cost Diesel fuel per hour to keep the thrasher humming to capacity.

And the owner* of this outfit saved $246.80 in fuel costs over a gasoline tractor—in its first six months! Find out more about this "bargain" horsepower. Get the complete facts now.

Rains last week over a three-day period have advanced the outlook for a bumper crop next year, also will help to curtail the march of the grasshoppers, etc.

Fru seems to be making the rounds of the countryside now, but a few cases being reported. Better now than in the winter time, anyway.

Miss Gladys Wilkinson, we hear, is going to Normal School this fall. Normal should prove a very easy test for her as she has proved herself quite a scholar in her public school years.

The summer/fallow crop on Alf Perkins' farm is reported to be tying up at the rate of three pounds to the acre, whilst other crops report from 1½ to 2 lbs. per acre.

Quite a few here have the Yellowknife crabs in their heads. It's nice if you can get them, but I'm afraid it costs a small fortune to start anything up there.

Quite a few of the local lads who set out last fall for the bush, etc. seem to be coming back now, as we notice them each time we are in town. They have learned this is a good district after all.

The roads this summer never were much to travel on, but now after the heavy rains they will be worse, what with the heavy hauling of wheat trucks to come, the roads will no doubt be terrible by freeze-up unless something is done. It's time the councilors woke up; what's the use of paying a license on cars when you can't use them?

The DIAL REVIEW

by Walter Bates

Not aiming to imply anything, but there seems to be a hidden wave of enthusiasm concerning one Continuity Writer and one Control Man. It's only holidays, of course, so we'll skip the whole suggestion and wish Miss Dorothy Horrocks and Mr. Merel Dahlgren a happy vacation.

The sales department of CUGA are very fortunate to have enlisted the aid of Walker Blake, the latest addition to the staff. Mr. Blake has worked in the radio field for some time, and apart from being a very congenial studio personality, he has brought with him some very interesting and valuable program ideas. Unfortunately we haven't been able to find out any of his embarrassing moments as yet, but time will tell, so be on your guard, Walker, these newshounds are poisonous.

Something new in musical entertainment may be heard every evening on the Burgess Sportcycle at 8:45. The range lately has been the Hammond Organ, and when played by Milton Herth, it becomes something very novel and rhythmically entertaining. Our Thesaurus library of transcriptions has quite a selection of Milton Herth numbers now, which adds greatly to the musical variety of CUGA's programs.

One of the most popular programs heard over CUGA is Backstage Wife with our friends Mary and Larry Noble. Heard every Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at 10:45. Backstage Wife provides a quarter hour of rare entertainment, the kind of story that one follows each day with the greatest interest and feels as though something is amiss if they don't happen to hear it.

One of the programs to draw the largest amount of weekly mail is the Saturday night Hello the North presentation. Every day visitors to the studio leave messages and requests for their friends and relatives down north. Northerners who have visited the studio on their time out of the north country say that people down there go for miles to listen to THEIR program. One good way of judging the popularity of a program is to watch the announcer's reactions, and they all agree that the Hello the North program is one where you can be yourself and really enjoy it thoroughly. The old familiar theme song, "When the Clock Is Striking Twelve", is well worn from continual usage, being one of the oldest theme songs on the station. The record is out of stock now, and it is feared that in time it will completely give out, but it's served its country well. It is not very often that a musical selection is so eagerly accepted, and if we had some way of passing on the thousands of words of appreciation, I'm sure that that record would take its place in the morgue, well satisfied with its lengthy service to the North.

Cecil Gould, popular commentator of Edmonton, starts a short series of talks entitled "Of Cabbages and Kings" on Monday night at 10:30. Dealing with the literary world, Of Cabbages and Kings will be a very interesting quarter hour for CBC listeners in Mid-East and Western Canada.

"Hurricane"—The biggest picture spectacle since talkies came. No one can watch this epic without becoming a part of this experience, at Elite next week.

One of the last forest giants in Australia, a 400-year-old tree nine feet in diameter and weighing seven tons, has recently been felled.

Journey's End

by A. B. CHAPIN

BRUCE BARTON Says:

Political Speeches Useless

I am curious to know how many of my readers are afflicted in the same curious manner as I am as a result of listening to a public speech. Here are a couple of illustrations:

A group of Big Shot executives held a convention in an eastern city and for three days delivered fiery speeches to each other, and presumably to the public, in denunciation of almost everything. Compelled to suffer through the entire session, I started out in somewhat general agreement with the speakers. On the second day I found myself cooling and on the third day in almost complete disagreement with their views.

Shortly thereafter I was compelled to suffer for my sins by having to listen to two speeches from the other side. Both gentlemen labored earnestly to win us and labored vigorously all those who differed with them. When they had finished speaking I was right back where I had started.

Now both sets of speakers were making perspiring efforts to strengthen their causes and both succeeded, so far as I was concerned, in doing the very opposite. Their positions would have been stronger had they never talked at all.

These experiences confirmed a doubt long held by me that rarely if ever does a political speech do any good. I once asked my father if he had ever known of any man who was persuaded to change his views by listening to a public address.

He answered: "Yes, it happened once. When I was a preacher in a small town in Ohio there were two old fellows, one a confirmed Methodist and the other a violent Baptist. They agreed to a debate. As a result of it the Methodist converted the Baptist and the Baptist converted the Methodist. Each died in the opposite faith."

As for the foolishness of speaking, and political speaking in particular, I suspect that father, too, had his doubts.

Work That Goes On

My good friend Roy Chapin, head of the Hudson Motor Car Company, died recently at the too early age of fifty-seven. Back in the early '20s, when he looked like a rosy-faced boy, he was president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. I was chatting with him at the annual dinner of the Chamber, and he told me this story:

"I left the University of Michigan at the end of my sophomore year and got a job with R. E. Olds, who was working on his first little one-cylinder Oldsmobile. One day we started out for a trial spin and had travelled only a few blocks when something happened and the car stopped."

"Mr. Olds said: 'You sit here while I go around the corner where there's a chap who runs a bicycle repair shop. I think he can fix us.' A moment later Mr. Olds returned with an alert mechanic who promptly got down on his back, crawled under the machine, made the repair, wiped out, brushed himself off, and accepted a quarter with thanks."

"That man was Henry Ford."

"This is the kind of story we used to tell each other in this country, with much pride. In those days each of us thought in his heart that he himself might be rich some day. Or, if not he, then his son or his grandson. We thought if the story of America that in one generation a hard working young fellow could rise from overalls to the command of a great institution."

The current philosophy seems to be that any man who has arisen to the command of a great institution must, ipso facto, be wrong. This is just a passing phase, one of those brief intervals that afflict a nation from time to time. This will pass and the work of the builders like Roy Chapin will remain.

"The Kidnap Murder Case"

by S. S. Van Dine

"Just a moment, Weem—have I the name right?" Vance put in. "You are the butler here, I understand?"

"Yes, sir," he said in a low, rumbling voice.

"And your wife is the cook, I believe?"

"Yes, sir."

"I say, Weem," Vance went on, "did either you or your wife hear anything unusual in the house, after you had gone out to your quarters?"

The man shifted his weight again. "No," he answered. "Everything was quiet until I went to sleep—and I didn't wake up till Mrs. Kentling rang for coffee around six."

"That's all, Weem."

The butler shuffled away lackadaisically.

"I think," Vance said to Heath, "it was a good idea to get McLaughlin. . . . There's really nothing more to be done up here just now. Suppose we go down and find out what he can tell us."

"Right!" And the Sergeant started toward the door, followed by Vance, Markham and myself.

Vance paused leisurely just before reaching the door and turned to the small writing-table at the front of the room, on which the telephone stood.

He regarded it contemptuously as he approached it. Opening the two shallow drawers, he peered into them. He turned to the small wastebasket beside the table and bent over it.

When he rose he asked Mrs. Kentling: "Does your husband do his writing at this table?"

"Yes, always," the woman answered.

"But did he never need any paste or mending?" Vance asked.

"Paste?" Mrs. Kentling appeared still more puzzled. "Why, no. As a matter of fact, I don't believe there's any in the house. . . . But why?"

"I'm merely trying to learn the truth about everything, and I beg you to forgive any questions which seem irrelevant."

The woman made no reply, and Vance again went toward the door where Markham and Heath and I were waiting, and we all went out into the hall.

As we reached the narrow landing half-way down the stairs, Markham suddenly stopped, letting Heath proceed on his way. He took Vance by the arm, detaining him.

"See here, Vance," he said aggressively, but in a subdued tone. "This kidnapping doesn't strike me as being entirely on the level. And I don't believe you really think that it is."

"Oh, my Markham!" deplored Vance. "Art thou a mind-reader?"

"Drop that," continued Markham angrily. "Either the kidnappers have no intention of harming young Kentling, or else—as I've suggested—Kentling staged the whole affair and kidnapped himself."

"What I want to know is, why you refused to offer any hope."

"Really, y' know, Markham," he said lightly, but with a certain seriousness, "you're a most admirable character, but you're far too naive for this unscrupulous world. Both you and your legal friend, Piel, are quite wrong in your suppositions. I assure you, don't y' know, that I am not sufficiently cruel to extend false hopes to any one."

"What do you mean by that, Vance?"

"My word, Markham! I can mean only one thing."

Vance continued to gaze at the District Attorney with sympathetic affection, and lowered his voice.

"The chap, I fear, is already dead."

Markham was stunned for a moment, but he was, I could see, frankly skeptical.

"You have a reason for saying that, Vance?"

"Put, put, my dear fellow," Vance returned lightly. "This is neither the place nor the time to discuss the matter. It's quite within my power to tell you all of the obvious evidence to you later on. At the moment I am most anxious to hear what McLaughlin has to say to the Sergeant. Let's descend and listen, what?"

McLaughlin was just about to speak to the Sergeant when he heard us enter the drawing-room. Recognizing Markham, he saluted respectfully.

"McLaughlin," Heath began, "what time are you relieved from your beat here?"

"Regular time—eight o'clock."

"Where were you around six o'clock this morning?"

"Doing my duty, sir," the officer assured Heath earnestly, "walking down the other side of the street opposite here, makin' my regular rounds."

"Did you see anybody, or anything, that looked suspicious?"

"I do, at that, Sergeant!" walking down the other side of the street opposite here, makin' my regular rounds."

"Put, put, my dear fellow," Vance returned lightly. "This is neither the place nor the time to discuss the matter. It's quite within my power to tell you all of the obvious evidence to you later on. At the moment I am most anxious to hear what McLaughlin has to say to the Sergeant. Let's descend and listen, what?"

McLaughlin was just about to speak to the Sergeant when he heard us enter the drawing-room. Recognizing Markham, he saluted respectfully.

"McLaughlin," Heath began, "what time are you relieved from your beat here?"

"Regular time—eight o'clock."

"Where were you around six o'clock this morning?"

"Doing my duty, sir," the officer assured Heath earnestly, "walking down the other side of the street opposite here, makin' my regular rounds."

"Did you see anybody, or anything, that looked suspicious?"

"I do, at that, Sergeant!" walking down the other side of the street opposite here, makin' my regular rounds."

"Did you see anybody, or anything, that looked suspicious?"

"It wouldn't have done a particle of good, anyway." He answered to the sofa and sat down lastly, stretching his legs out before him. It was obvious he had no other questions to put to the officer.

Heath straightened up. "That's all, McLaughlin. Much obliged for coming down. Go on home and hit the hay."

The officer saluted and turned. A moment later the front door shut noisily after him.

"What now, Mr. Vance?" Heath was again resting his weight against the desk.

"Oh, much more, Sergeant," Vance answered in answer. "You haven't the faintest idea of how much I'd really like to learn about a number of things."

"But we here, Vance," interrupted Markham, "I first want to know what you mean by that statement you made as we were coming down the stairs. I can't see at all, and I'd bet money that fellow Kasper is as safe as you or I."

"I'm afraid you'd lose your wager, old dear."

"But all the evidence points—" began Markham.

"Please, oh please, Markham," implored Vance. "Must we necessarily leave whenever a finger points?"

"Damn it, Vance!" Markham returned angrily. "I want to know why you said what you did on the stairs in face of all the evidence to the contrary."

"Excuse me, Chief," put in Heath. "I didn't hear what Mr. Vance said to you on the stairs. I don't know what his ideas on the case are."

Markham looked at the Sergeant.

"Mr. Vance doesn't believe that Kasper's Kenting was kidnapped merely for money or that he may have walked out and staged the kidnapping himself. He said he thinks that the fellow is already dead."

Heath spun round abruptly to Vance.

"The hell you say!" he exclaimed. "How in the name of God did you get such an idea, Mr. Vance?"

"My word, Sergeant! It seems sufficiently indicated."

"Do you really think, Markham, that your plotting Kasper would have gone to the Jersey casino to indulge in a bit of gambling on his big night—that is to say, on the night he intended to carry out his grand coup involving fifty thousand dollars?"

"And why not?"

"It's quite obvious this criminal undertaking was carefully prepared in advance. The note itself is sufficient evidence of this, with its letters and words painstakingly cut out and neatly pasted on a piece of disguised paper."

"The criminal undertaking, as you call it, need not necessarily have been prepared very far in advance," objected Markham. "Kasper would have had time to do his cutting and pasting when he returned from the casino."

"Oh, no, I don't think so," Vance returned at once. "I took a good look at the desk and the wastebasket basket. No evidence whatever of such activity. Moreover, the fellow's phone call in the wee hours of the morning shows a certain amount of expectation on his part of getting the matter of his financial difficulties settled."

"Go on," said Markham.

"Very good," continued Vance. "Why should Kasper Kenting have taken three hours to change to street clothes after he had returned from his pleasant evening of devilry gambling? A few minutes would have sufficed. And another question: Why should he wait until bright daylight before going forth? The darkness would have been infinitely better suited to his purpose?"

"How do you know he didn't go much earlier—before it was daylight?" demanded Markham.

"But, my dear fellow," explained Vance, "the ladder was still leaning against the tree around dawn, when McLaughlin saw it, and therefore it was not placed against the window until after sunrise."

"I see what you mean, Mr. Vance," Heath threw in eagerly. "And Mrs. Kenting herself told us that she heard some one in the room at six o'clock this morning."

"True, Sergeant; but that's not the important thing," Vance answered calmly. "As a matter of fact, I don't think it was Kasper at all whom Mrs. Kenting saw after he had come home from his highballs and roulette-playin'. All of which, I rather think, substantiates the assumption that it was another person that the lady heard at six o'clock this morning."

¼ cup milk
2 eggs
Salt and pepper to taste
4 medium tomatoes
2 tablespoons butter
1 onion, sliced
1 bay leaf

Set in casserole and pour cheese mixture into tomato cups. Melt butter in saucepan, add tomato pulp, sliced onion and bay leaf, and simmer until slightly reduced. DISHES DEMANDING MILK It's all very well for a doctor, nurse or writer to tell you to see that your child drinks plenty of milk, but it is an entirely different story if your child is one of those cherubs who refuses absolutely to drink milk. You have a real problem upon your hands. Milk is urgently needed by the growing child. There is no doubt about this being true. Some children refuse to drink it. This also is true. Solve the problem by furnishing milk in dishes that children really like. Your child may like escalloped potatoes, fried beef, egg nog or milk shakes. These all call for liberal quantities of milk. But if none of these dishes appeal, try a milk dessert and your chances of failure are practically nil.

FAIRLAND FRIED EGGS
1 rennet tablet
1 tablespoon cold water
1 pint milk
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 or 5 canned apricot halves

Make rennet-custard according to directions in package. Chill in refrigerator. Just before serving top each dish of rennet-custard with one of the canned apricot halves with the rounded side up.

APRICOT PRISTO RENNET-CUSTARD
½ pound dried apricots
1 cup water
½ cup sugar
1 pint milk
1 package chocolate rennet powder

Wash the apricots well and soak overnight in cold water. Simmer in same water until soft, remove from fire and put through peeler sieve. Stir in sugar and cool. Warm milk to lukewarm—not hot (120° F.). A few drops on the inside of the wrist should feel comfortably warm. Remove from stove, add rennet powder and stir until dissolved. Pour into sherbet glasses, filling to about ¾ inch from top. Allow to stand 10 minutes without moving; then set in refrigerator to chill. Add cream or water to apricot puree, if necessary, until it will spread easily. Spread lightly over top of rennet-custard to a depth of ¼ to ½ inch. Whip cream until stiff and heap lightly over puree, covering surface. Sprinkle with a generous amount of marmalade crumbs. Chill until ready to serve. Yield: 6 to 8 desserts.

London's false fire alarms are growing more numerous annually. During 1935 there were 1,271 such calls, as compared with only 638 in 1932.

AD (TOWARD)

VERTO (TO DRAW)

Perhaps you, also, have been forced to arrive at a rather uncomfortable conclusion from the things you have been seeing and the sounds you have been hearing recently . . . a conclusion that many advertisers do not know—or knowing, do not remember—just what that much misused and abused word ADVERTISING means.

Our dictionary tells us that Advertising is derived from the Latin Ad (toward) and Verto (to draw). It means to DRAW TOWARD.

Comes the question: Is it possible to attract the greatest number of buyers towards a specific product by imitation, senseless ballyhoo, deceit, or quacksand reasoning? Can it be accomplished by tingling language or by pictures of beautiful feminine limbs?

To draw toward—no mean job. But a job which can be done well, as demonstrated by the scattered few who are doing it. And to do it is not complicated. It requires the certain knowledge of how much benefit the buyers can get from your product. It requires an ability to give people this knowledge in a simple, truthful, interesting manner . . . and the courage to keep telling until the stars fall.

This screed opens with the word "perhaps". With your permission we shall end it the same way.

Perhaps it might be well for us to remember that the word Advertising does not mean cleverness, trickiness, sexology, wit, art nor self-glorification. It means to draw toward.

The World of Wheat

H. O. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

Popular delusions and amazing absurdities! Such are the extraordinary beliefs that the student of history finds have been held by large numbers of people at various times throughout the ages.

In Canada, for instance, only a short time ago, it was seriously contended, "That the climate over the prairies had changed, that the desert was marching northward and that never again could we expect normal rainfall." Another statement was "That even though it rained the land would not produce good crops as it had done in the past, because farmers stupidly had robbed the soil of fibre and fertility."

Yet last autumn, once again normal rainfalls occurred, and over large parts of the West, particularly in the drought areas, abundant rains have fallen so far during this growing season.

In addition, the soil in the drought areas, that many said had lost its fertility and fibre, is again growing a splendid wheat crop.

The truth is that over a term of years, climate does not seem to change, and that given normal rainfall average yields will certainly be produced. Also it seems that prophecies about rainfall and yields are misleading, futile and vain.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Hail and grasshoppers cause further damage in Western Canada—Greece buys Danubian wheat—France to store wheat for military supplies—Japan and Russia dash on border of Manchukuo—Unsettled political conditions in the Far East—Unfavorable advices from Russian spring wheat territory.

Following factors have tended to lower price: International Institute of Agriculture expects largest northern hemisphere wheat crop since world war—Large rye crops in Poland, Russia and Balkan States—Holland raises import levy on cereals—Greece receives Australian wheat—Expected wheat crop in the United Kingdom much larger than last year.

NOT EVEN THE SELFISH CAN WALK ALONE!

No one—not even the most selfish person—can get along without the aid of others.

We must have the ploughs that others make; the cloth others weave; the stones others quarry; the aid of others in building—whether that building is of a house or a character. Without some kind of mutual aid man would still be a savage! It is by people working together that cities are built up—that great vessels can cross the seas—that government, law and order are possible—YES! and that lodge and fraternal organizations are instituted, and run, and grow and expand for the benefit of all members and the world in general.

Truly—even the selfish cannot walk alone!

AN ORIGINAL LOVE STORY

He struggled to kiss her, she struggled the same.

To prevent him, so bold and undaunted,

But as smitten by lightning, he heard her exclaim,

"Avaunt, sir!"—and off he avauanted.

But when he returned with the fiendishst laugh,

Showing clearly that he was affronted,

And threatened by main force to carry her off,

She yelled "Don't!"—and the poor fellow dented.

When he meekly approached and sat down at her feet,

Praying loud, as before he'd recanted,

That she would forgive him and try to be sweet.

And said "Can't you?"—the dear girl recanted,

Then softly he whispered, "How could you do so?"

I certainly thought I was jilted; But come thou with me, to the parson we'll go;

Say, wilt thou, my dear?"—and she wilted.

MAKING CANADA

A Better Place in Which to Live

A Series of Letters from Distinguished Canadians on Vital Problems Affecting the Future Welfare of Canada

Specially Written for Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association

LETTER No. 19

Dear Mr. Editor:

With reference to your enquiry asking what endeavor I would recommend to the six hundred editors of rural weekly newspapers spread across Canada with their six million readers to make Canada a better place in which to live and work, I believe that a campaign to inculcate a spirit of self-reliance would be most of beneficial character.

Discovery and invention have brought about new economic conditions and even new moral concepts. More and more responsibility has been placed upon Government. In the early days of the depression many people sought acceptance of Government relief, but relief, like vice, has come to be embraced. I well remember the time, and perhaps you do also, when people were ashamed to appeal to the Government for personal assistance. Now it is becoming a Government duty.

There is no doubt that there are certain measures of helpful individual character which can only be carried out by Government, such, for example, as Old Age Pensions. A measure of this kind should not be looked upon as a matter of charity but as a matter of benefit for the State as a whole.

On the other hand, there is no doubt that many able-bodied people have come to rely upon Government for subsistence as well as assistance in a great variety of ways. I believe that well directed and continuous campaign upon the subject of self reliance would be beneficial both to the individual and to the State.

Wishing the weekly press every success, I beg to remain,

Very faithfully yours,

J. D. PATTULLO,

Premier of British Columbia.

The price of grain is set so it will not go lower, though under conditions which might happen at any minute it could increase in price rapidly. The best place to store your grain is on your farm, in a weatherproof granary built from the dry lumber, of which there is a large stock at the Atlas Lumber Yard. Joe Welch, Mgr.

The new Bawit Grain Elevator will soon be finished at Fabyan and is in a much more favorable location than the old one which was the first elevator built at Fabyan, before any grading was done by the railroad and located on a side hill which was hard to gain access to.

The Legion Notice Board

Some time ago we mentioned in this column that all pensioners with 50 percent disability would be automatically increased to 60, 70 and 80 percent as their age reached 55, 57 and 59 respectively.

At the time of the recent visit of Comrade Alex. Walker, Provincial President this question was brought up and he was asked when this new ruling would take effect. His reply was that it only affected those who had gunshot wounds and not those who had 50 or more per cent. of disability from other causes. This seems a strange decision. Many of us know of cases where the loss of an arm or leg or other wounds have left a man in much better health and with a far better chance of living out a full life expectancy than is the case with other men who have a similar percentage of disability from disease. It is absolutely right that the gunshot cases should be increased in this manner but it would certainly appear that any disability caused by service should benefit equally.

Well, the righting of this is just one more of those things that the Legion is interested in and one more objective in that slow but steady advance of our organization.

After praying for rain for so many years, it sounds odd to hear people wondering if it is ever going to clear up. However, in spite of all the wet weather, the general opinion is that it has done no harm, and will benefit the late crops and provide moisture for next spring, as well as raising the water level in the wells, which were going dry the past two years.

Summer must be on the wane, for the lake camps at Clear Lake are now practically all deserted and the cottagers moved back to their respective homes in town. Unfortunately this season has not been exactly a propitious one for such class of holiday.
